Task One

Lea Walck

I'm not seeing any research question in either the Review of Literature or the Methods section here, so you might want to add that. The paper seems to lead from topic to topic appropriately, though. There are more than three paragraphs in the methods section, the headings are correctly formatted and I'm not seeing any grammatical errors.

There's sort of a research question in the introduction section, but I feel like it could be fleshed out more. The paper does a good job of leading from the introductory paragraphs to the review of literature containing the sources. The Methods section contains a more-than-appropriate four paragraphs, the headings are properly formatted, and there aren't any grammar issues I'm seeing.

Task Two

a) Where are you currently in your final research project completion? Are you pleased with your accomplishments so far? So far I've pretty much only done what we've done together in the class through these discussions. However, I'm still happy with my progress on this given the amount of time I've had to allocate to Calculus. Overall I should be able to easily get the research done on time.

b) Do you have pressing concerns or issues that may prevent you from being successful? Do you have other questions? If so, feel free to write some of these that I may be able to address as feedback to your post. Nope.
